- On 15 March at 5 a.m., eight railroad boxcars and 16 flatcars arrived at the Neuruppin (N 53/7 49) central railroad station. Four boxcars were occupied by about 130 to 150 soldiers wearing black-bordered blue or yellow-bordered blue epaulets. The content of the other four boxcars could not be determined. Twelve flatcars were loaded with nine heavy tractors, three light tractors, three heavy ploughs, six light ploughs, three heavy land packers with peg teeth, five trailers with equipment and fuel containers, two tank trucks each with a capacity of 3,000 to 4,000 liters, and one saw of Landgraefin type. One of the tags bore the inscription Berlin-Biesdorf (N 53/Y 95). The railroad cars were being unloaded and the troops went toward the airfield. The remaining four flatcars, loaded with ladders and equipment, were shunted to the spur track of the airfield. *
